DEMARK'S WIFE.

A CHRISTMAS STORY. Of course every one knows the mercantile house of Demark & Co. Single-mann and I were the Co., and Demark —well, of course, he was Demark. Demark and Singlemann had roomed together when they were boys and young men. Then Demark got married, and Singlemann took the rooms he has

She always looked straight ahead and never seemed to know that she passed the ling at a desk in a counting-room. Her hat and cloak were flung on the desk beside her, and she was evidently just ready to leave. The loveliest little frown was on her brow, and the figures lamp-light shone on her fair face, and it never looked so handsome before. I stood before the window and gazed there in rapt admiration and, I may say, adoration. I tell you, John, I don't believe that people nowadays know

"Well, did she come out?" " Of course she did," said Singlemann a little crossly, "and equally of course I followed her at a distance and saw where she lived. She walked straight on and did not seem a bit afraid. She emed to set her lips closely together, draw her cloak around her and walked swiftly to her destination. Several times I determined to speak to her, but had neither courage nor excuse. 'De mark, said I, when I reached my room,

MAGNETISM AS A CURATIVE AGENT.

During the past century there has been a great revolution in the department of medicine, as in everything else. The old methods, to a great extent, have been laid away forever, and, guided by new scientific discoveries and the revelation of hitherto-hidden truths, the people of to-day see clearly and surely where before they saw through a glass darkly. Among the greatest exemplars of this new regime, and the brightest lights in the healing profession, tand pre-eminently the names of the renowned magnetic physicians, Drs. Darrin, at 41 West 35th St., N.Y., where they treat patients from 10 to 4. Drs. Darrin have the highest references from people cured by their system of treatment.
